November 2026 Volunteer Spotlight

Janet Partridge

SU 177 - Midtown

For Janet Partridge, being a Girl Scout volunteer is about much more than badges, camping trips and outdoor adventures. It's about helping girls discover their strengths, develop leadership skills, and build a supportive community where every girl has the opportunity to thrive.

Janet's Girl Scout journey began when she was a Brownie Girl Guide in England. When her daughter, Emily, joined Girl Scouts in kindergarten, Janet saw how much the program meant to her. Nearly five years ago, she began volunteering, inspired by Emily's enthusiasm and the dedication of the troop leaders.

Today, Janet serves as a leader for a Senior troop and an Ambassador troop. As a scientist, she enjoys encouraging girls to think critically, explore new concepts, and approach challenges with curiosity. She also values the diversity within her troop and its commitment to making adventures accessible to everyone through cookie sales and other fundraising efforts.

From exploring Mammoth Cave and St. Louis to planning a food-focused trip to Italy for 2028, Janet helps girls turn their interests into unforgettable experiences. She says she has also watched girls grow into confident leaders through community service projects, including Silver Award projects focused on planting native trees and creating pollinator gardens.

What motivates Janet most is seeing girls develop new skills and knowing their troop provides a safe, supportive environment where they can turn to trusted adults. She also treasures the friendships she has built with fellow volunteers, who support one another while helping girls reach their potential.

Through Girl Scouting, Janet is helping the girls in her troops build confidence, embrace new experiences and discover how they can make a difference in their communities—one adventure at a time.
